I've been ordered by the Commissioner, reminding me about the instructions given by the government for the preservation of some of the old structures and materials considered historically and aesthetically beautiful.' – Capt. H.J.Pitt. Personal Assistant to the Commissioner of Assam, in Circular No. 8, Dated 20th January, 1870, to Deputy Commissioners of all districts.

1875 the late chief of Assam was to be found in the district. The British had already taken possession of the area. But the local people were不愿 to give up their land. The British had taken possession of the area. But the local people were不愿 to give up their land. The British had taken possession of the area. But the local people were不愿 to give up their land. The British had taken possession of the area. But the local people were不愿 to give up their land.

Assam was a large and important region. The British had taken possession of the area. But the local people were不愿 to give up their land. The British had taken possession of the area. But the local people were不愿 to give up their land. The British had taken possession of the area. But the local people were不愿 to give up their land.

The British had taken possession of the area. But the local people were不愿 to give up their land. The British had taken possession of the area. But the local people were不愿 to give up their land. The British had taken possession of the area. But the local people were不愿 to give up their land. The British had taken possession of the area. But the local people were不愿 to give up their land. The British had taken possession of the area. But the local people were不愿 to give up their land.